EDITORIAL

It's fast approaching that time of year, when hundreds of new musicians are born, shortly after Santa has deposited that shiny new Electric Guitar or the Drum Kit, maybe a Keyboard or for the less challenged a Triangle.

But if your serious about becoming a musician, the work starts straight away with hours and hours of practice. You can sign up at one of the many teaching studios that exist around the area, there's Cadno Music in Llanelli Welsh Valley Music in Port Talbot and Drumnutt in Swansea, but the main lesson wherever you go is don't give up. By New Years Day, Cash Generator will be bursting at the seams with discarded instruments, don't you be the one to fail, you will always regret it and never experience the buzz of playing in front of an audience, it's something you can't buy.

Swansea seems to be moving forward on the music front with some great acts coming to town. We have already had Bill Wyman and his All Star Band at the Grand and the legend that is Chuck Berry at the Brangwyn, and the new Year will see Paul Carrack and Joe Brown at the Grand. Milkwoodjam and Sin City are also doing their bit to bring you top quality acts.

We hope you all have A Very Happy and Rocking Christmas and keep supporting Live Music.

Cameron Stewart and his Band

Cameron Stewart has been writing and performing songs since the age of fifteen and has now added producing to his list of skills. He has spent the last eleven years playing in a number of covers bands with some very talented musicians and all the while he continued to write and perform his own material.

For several years he has also worked as a successful freelance producer, but his goal has always been to perform his own material. In 2007, he was chosen to be the voice of the updated Fireman Sam signature tune.

In 2009, he has discovered a new confidence in his songwriting and together with his current band, he has recorded an EP of his own work entitled "The Timetable". The majority of the songs are based on his own life experiences, but he has admitted also being influenced by artistes such as The Manics, Stereophonics and The Lost Prophets.

The present band consists of Cameron on Vocals and Guitar, Matthew Lemmer on Bass, Mike Cole on Drums, Dave Owen Guitar, Ieuan Wyn on Keyboards and both Ceri Stingl and Beth Turner on Backing Vocals.
